New homework trial - Year 6

Teacher comment

This new style of homework has been very successful. The majority of the children in Year 6 found it a much better way of having homework. Also the majority of parents preferred this way.

As a teacher it made the finding homework process less of a chore. Pupils were more engaged and interested. I also felt that I spent more time with each child discussing their homework and giving feedback whereas previously I would have ploughed through a set of books and the children wouldn't have seen them till the Friday when the next homework was given out. This way of having homework was a more meaningful process. I also found that I didn't have to chase pupils for homework that they 'hadn't had time to complete'.

I would like to carry this style of homework on and also introduce it to other classes.
